DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is responsive to the application filed on October 27, 2003. Claims 1-22 are pending. Claims 1-22 represent method, system and program product for communicating over a network.

2. Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated Nishida U.S. 5619697

Nishida teaches the invention as claimed including inter-processor communication system for performing message communication between processors and multi-processor real time system for communicating among a plurality of processors at real time with the inter-processor communication system.

As to claims 1, 10, 15 and 20, Nishida teaches a method, a system and a program product stored on a recordable medium for communicating over a network, the method comprising:

- obtaining a set of rules for classifying messages on a client (column 5, lines 45-48);

- providing a message on the client to be sent to a server (figure 2, item 40; column 5, lines 49-52);

- classifying the message on the client based on the set of rules (column 5, lines 45-48; figure 2); and

- sending the message to the server based on the message classification (column 8, lines 46-51).

As to claim 2, Nishida teaches the method of claim 1, wherein the providing step comprises generating the message (column 8, lines 46-56).

As to claim 3, Nishida teaches the method of claim 1, further comprising periodically requesting an updated set of rules from the server (column 5, lines 41-44).

As to claim 4, Nishida teaches the method of claim 1, wherein the classifying step includes matching an attribute of the message with at least one of the set of rules (column 6, lines 19-23).

As to claim 5, Nishida teaches the method of claim 1, further comprising adjusting a port for the message based on the classification prior to the sending step (column 17, lines 2-24).

As to claim 6, Nishida teaches the method of claim 1, further comprising opening a connection with the server for the message (column 17, lines 32-35).

As to claims 7 and 8, Nishida teaches the method of claims 1 and 7, respectively, further comprising receiving a response message from the server, wherein the classified message and the response message are communicated over a first port, and wherein the first port is not a default port (column 5, lines 52-57).

As to claim 9, Nishida teaches the method of claim 1, further comprising separately monitoring a plurality of ports on the server for messages (abstract).

As to claim 11, Nishida teaches the method of claim 10, further comprising receiving a classified message from the client through a unique port (column 5, lines 52-57).

As to claim 12, Nishida teaches the method of claim 11, further comprising: processing the classified message (figure 2); and sending a response message to the client (column 5, lines 52-57).

As to claim 13, Nishida teaches the method of claim 10, further comprising opening a connection with the client (column 17, lines 32-35).

As to claim 14, Nishida teaches the method of claim 10, further comprising: receiving a request from the client for an updated set of rules; and sending the updated set of rules to the client (abstract).

As to claim 16, Nishida teaches the system of claim 15, further comprising a plurality of processing systems, wherein each processing system processes messages having a unique message classification (column 5, lines 52-57; abstract).

As to claim 17, Nishida teaches the system of claim 15, further comprising a classification system for classifying messages on a client (figure 2).

As to claim 18, Nishida teaches the system of claim 15, further comprising a maintenance system for periodically requesting the set of rules from the server (column 5, lines 41-44).

As to claim 19, Nishida teaches the system of claim 15, wherein each monitoring system monitors a unique port of the server (column 5, lines 52-57).

As to claim 21, Nishida teaches the program product of claim 20, further comprising program code for classifying messages on a client (figure 2).

As to claim 22, Nishida teaches the program product of claim 20, further comprising program code for periodically requesting the set of rules from the server (column 5, lines 41-44).
